THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

There has never been a greater need for highly prepared candidates for the superintendency. In these times of reform and change, it is critical that principals, directors and assistant superintendents aspiring to the position of superintendent of schools prepare themselves to step forward in the greater service of children and school communities in New York State.

Superintendent of Schools is a challenging position requiring ethical decision making and behavior, belief that all children can be successful during and after their formal schooling and ability to make critical decisions while under pressure. The position demands extra-ordinary leadership and deserves the best leaders.

The New York State Superintendent Development Program provides participants an opportunity to work on a weekly basis with exceptional, experienced superintendents whose careers reflect the strongest commitment to serving children, school communities and the next generation of school superintendents.

I participated in the Superintendent’s Development Program in 2010, nine years before becoming a superintendent. No other program has offered me the level of preparation needed to take on this role. The SDP’s reflective nature helped me to identify personal strengths and reflect on areas of growth, giving me the encouragement and confidence needed to become a superintendent.

THE PROGRAM

The New York State Superintendent Development Program offers instruction and mentoring to assist individuals through the transition to becoming superintendent of schools.

At the core of this program are regional teams consisting of one or two superintendent faculty mentors working with four to nine participants (Associates) through a series of authentic learning activities – real issues faced by superintendents in local school districts – to develop real-world solutions with real-world consequences. The issues are identified and sequenced by the faculty mentors to develop insight, knowledge and attitude. Interviews, writing assignments, small and large group tasks and seminars supplement the Associates' work on authentic issues.

Associates are trained to use systems thinking in areas critical to success as a superintendent. They develop the skills and behaviors essential to become a successful superintendent of schools.

The goal of the New York State Superintendent Program experience is to acculturate the Associates to the remarkable challenges and rewards of the superintendency, developing graduates prepared to serve the children and school communities of New York State.
